

VALENTINA ATTOLINI

Valentina Attolini is a visual artist working between Mexico City and the UK. Her work emerges from the body as a site where internal and external forces converge. Through painting and drawing, she explores materiality and sensory experience as fields of transformation, approaching subtle spaces in which meaning begins to take shape.

Attolini articulates her practice through the tension between opposites, examining how desire and pain, beauty and violence, calm and ecstasy can coexist within a single space. Her work resists closure or resolution, seeking to reveal what often remains invisible: the internal, embodied experience — a space of living intensities that insist on taking form.
